

No Limit Holdem

No Limit Holdem does not have any limitations relating to the size of the bets; the game should be played pretty tight and concentrated right from the beginning else it can turn out to be a very costly mistake. Before you dare to play no limit hold'em you need to learn some basics to judge the table image. In a no limit hold'em the skill set of the opponent players should be considered and the game should be played accordingly. The maximum people fold before the show down, the more advantageous if you are still playing

.Some tips to follow with winning in a no limit hold'em with reference to your opponent are:-

- If you are playing with tight players try to bring in a raise in the pre-flop and in the most you must be smart enough to take the pot at the flop, or have the tight one fold down.
- Tight players usually do not try to bet more if they have a weak hand or a hand that can draw. If you feel that tight players are placing a small bet in No Limit Hold'em you keep continuing to play.
- Tight players usually bet more if they have a strong hand. If you feel that tight player has a strong hand in No Limit Hold'em you better fold.
- Bluff within limits. If you have a weak hand better try to fold in pre-flop in No Limit Hold'em rather than adventuring out to risk playing with the tight player.
- Tight holders can be beat if you have that skill set to bluff in the right place and make wise moves from the very beginning.
- Tight aggressive players should be dealt with more caution than just a tight player; however, the motives of such players can be easily read.
- There are one category of dangerous types who are the tricky loose-aggressive players who may not mind losing large chips in a stake and from nowhere they may win huge pots too! They are in most cases quite difficult to judge.

In No Limit Hold'em calculating poker odds with every move is quite important. Since there is no limitation or restriction on the bets and raises, and the motives of players is to simply extract all that you have you can easily exhaust your chips and lose more money than you can bear. Do not try No Limit Hold'em until you are sure of several of the strategies and odds.
